Photography ANGELITA BONETTI

While in Milan for this year's design week, the Belle team opened our little black book of designers. Here, we pay them a visit as their creativity is celebrated on a global scale.

PEOPLE

DON CAMERON

The filmmaker turned interior designer showed a body of work titled 'Translations' at Alcova, a roaming exhibition that revives dilapidated Milanese buildings. Cameron used his photographic explorations of Europe as a jumping off point for his furniture design, with the idea to capture the same atmosphere in a different medium. There's a gravitas to Cameron who, despite having worked with architecture heavyweights such as Dr Gene Sherman, AM, flies modestly under the radar. @doncameron.studio
